Thunderbird Conservation Park Trails to Receive Makeover. Hikers, bikers and equestrians will find a smoother path during their outdoor adventures thanks to a $44,000 grant from Arizona State Parks that is going to spruce up trails at one of Glendale's most popular parks. Trail improvements have begun at Thunderbird Conservation Park and are expected to continue until mid-January.

The trail maintenance will be concentrated on five trails in the park (H-2, H-2A, H-3, H-3A and H-4) and provide approximately six miles of improvements. YRU Contracting, based out of Idaho, will complete the trail maintenance. The company has built and maintained over 700 miles of trails and constructed 20 major trail bridges in 15 states. The trail maintenance includes boulder removal, leveling, installation of erosion control features and retaining walls and infilling with native materials.

Trail notices and signs will be posted at each end of the trail work site to warn hikers of the trail work ahead. Work will be done on the trails from 7 a.m. to 5 p.m., Sunday through Friday, with a break on Saturdays. Click here for more information about Thunderbird Park.
